

Shrine to St. Oliver Plunkett

St. Peter's Church, West Street, Drogheda

Meet St. Oliver Plunkett, a brave and kind man who was born on November 1, 1625, in Loughcrew, County Meath. When he grew up, he became the Archbishop of Armagh.

St. Oliver loved teaching and helping people learn about God. He worked hard to make schools better and helped many people during tough times. Even though it was dangerous for him he never stopped trying to help.

Sadly, St. Oliver was caught up in a very unfair plot called the Popish Plot, where people told lies about him. He had to hide and even dress up in disguises to avoid being caught! Despite everything, he stayed brave and continued to look after the people who needed him.

In 1681, St. Oliver was unfairly put on trial and sentenced to death. He died bravely, still caring about others more than himself. Many years later, people realized how good and kind he was, and he was made a saint in 1975.
